

“Given that many young people, especially those living in remote areas, do not have access to the contraceptives of their choice, how might we meaningfully integrate young people’s perspective into the reproductive health supply chain, so that it gives them equal access to a wide range of high-quality supplies?”